Explanation of signs

Speaking

- approximate the pitch using your own range

There are two different types of notation for speaking.

– a triangle shaped note head:
to be spoken in tempo with the exact time values given

– diamond shaped note heads:
these rhythms are transcribed from recorded original spoken phrases. The rhythms are approximation of original speaking rhythms.

They are written very precisely to give a hint on what the composer had in mind.

- crotchet tempo 60 connects these phrases to time, not to the overall tempo. They are placed in the score graphically in the right place: how they sound together with the rest of the parts.
 - observe the rhythms and the place where they are to be performed, but try to make the parts sounding as naturally spoken as possible

The image shows two musical staves. The top staff is for 'energetic, happy speaking' and is in 3/4 time. It features triangle-shaped note heads and includes lyrics 'an-ge e-xakt ad-res och kom - mun'. The bottom staff is for '(♩ = 60) seriously, giving instructions' and is also in 3/4 time. It features diamond-shaped note heads and includes lyrics 'Hand-la en - ligt de ins-truk-tio - ner du får'. Both staves include tempo markings (♩ = 60) and dynamics (mf).

In bars 44–64, it is easiest to follow the lines that are in tempo → the spoken lines with triangle shaped note heads. Try that layer together first, then hang the floating layer with diamond shaped note heads to it. (The result hopefully sounds a bit chaotic!)

There are different kinds of characters in speaking. They are explained above each spoken phrase. Try to make them different from each other.

- slick businessman/woman: try to sell the idea
- bidding as in auction: try to make the best offer on the subjects sold. Maybe could include some acting by occasionally lifting hands before making offers?
- seriously, giving instructions: like in tv news when there has happened some serious things. Like authorities giving instructions to public in the radio, when there is an emergency.
- excited: enthusiastically, rushing
- energetic, happy: in tempo, very precise and light. Without a care in the world.
- worried: usually rushing towards the end. Getting worried and a bit in panic.

Ostinato:

- through at least half of the piece there is an ostinato: In case of emergency, in case of emergency call.
 - whatever happens, this should be kept the same through the piece. It is mostly in p and is to be sung lightly. There are staccato dots attached to the notes to indicate that.
 - it is covered occasionally by other layers of sounds. This should happen.
 - the tempo should be kept steady no matter what happens. This layer doesn't wait for other, others have to follow it.
