During the bars 59–115 the music consists mainly of sound fields. In these bars the music proceeds mostly without pulse, and the written rhythms are often very complicated. However, the rhythms need not to be played exactly. It is important to understand the rhythmic shapes of the music, i.e. the player should carry out the idea of increasing and decreasing the density of the music at a pace, which can be an approximation of the given rhythmic values. Thus the written rhythms are my suggestion about execution of the primary rhythmic ideas in the music.

This image displays a page of musical notation for a piano piece, likely from a 19th-century manuscript. The notation is arranged in four systems, each consisting of two staves (treble and bass clef). The first system (measures 13-16) features a key signature of one flat and a 6/16 time signature. It includes a melodic line in the right hand with a 'm.s.' (musical setting) marking and a 'scherzando' tempo indication. The second system (measures 15-16) continues the melodic development. The third system (measures 17-18) shows a change in time signature to 3/4. The fourth system (measures 19-22) includes dynamic markings such as 'p' (piano) and 'mf' (mezzo-forte). The notation is characterized by its elegant, handwritten style, with various musical symbols like notes, rests, and slurs. A large, stylized watermark 'PROMOTION' is visible across the bottom left of the page.
