Notes:

This piece exists in two versions; in addition to this concerto, it was written as a quintet for piano and strings.

The aleatoric passage, beginning at measure 92, is played without the conductor up to measure 98. Following the soloist, the conductor signals the que (at m. 98) and the ensuing fade-out (mm. 98 to 99), after which the soloist continues on without the conductor until the entrance of the cellos at measure 106.

Accidentals are valid for the duration of the measure.

Diminuendo al niente:

The instructions for the players at measure 92 are as follows:

VI. I, a 4 soli: Repeat this ten-note line, freely varying the fluctuation of tempo and the speed of the glissandi (keeping the duration of each pitch approximately between 1 to 4 seconds and the glissandi at a mostly slow-to-moderate speed), and altering the frequency of the tremolo.

VI. II, solo: Repeat these six double stops, in any order, varying their durations between approximately 4 to 8 seconds, and varying the dynamic level between mp and mf, occasionally reaching f. (In transition, tie the end of m. 91 to m. 92 and discard the first hairpin.)

VI. II, gli altri: Alternate freely between these two tremolos.

Vle, a 2 soli: Repeat these five tremolo phrases in free tempo (the duration of each being around 5 seconds), changing their order freely.

Vle, gli altri: Hold the pedal tone, changing gradually back and forth between sul tasto and sul ponticello, in free tempo.

Vc, solo: Repeat these five phrases in free tempo, the duration of each being around 5 seconds.

Cb, a 2 soli: Hold the pedal tone, changing gradually back and forth between sul tasto and sul ponticello, in free tempo.
